Dr. M. Allen Starr Leaves a Share of Estate to College

Middlebury to Receive One Quarter After Deaths of Other Legatees

WIFE AND DAUGHTER HAVE LIFE INTEREST

Princeton to Get Half and Columbia a Fourth in Final Settlement

Middlebury College will be benefited by the will of the late M. Allen Starr which is now on file for probate in New York city.

According to the main part of the will the Egbert Starr library was to receive the sum of $50,000 for the maintenance of the building and in the purchase of books. This clause was revoked in the second codicil to the will because of the depreciation in value of securities and property and also because payment of cash legacies would impair the value of the residuary estate. However there is a later statement in the codicil which suggests that the residuary legatees consider carrying into effect the bequests at the end of ten years.

Dr. Starr has also provided for the following: that after all debts, funeral expenses and other legacies have been paid the executors are to divide the residue of the property into two equal shares. The first is to be held by the United States Trust Company of New York, the named trustee, and is to be disposed of as follows: the net income from the whole in each year is to be paid quarterly to Mr. Starr's wife, Alice Dunning Starr, as long as she lives and after her death it is to go to his daughter, Katharine Starr Oliver so long as she lives. At her death the principal is to be divided equally between Princeton university and Middlebury College. In case Mrs. Starr survives her daughter the share held in trust for her during her life is to go at her death to Princeton and Middlebury, being divided equally between them. The second share benefits Princeton and Columbia university under similar conditions.

Men's Debating Team Plans Trips

Members to Meet Colleges in Boston, Northern New York and New York City

The Middlebury College debating team will this year engage in a more extensive schedule than ever before contracted. A total of eighteen debates are being scheduled by Frederick W. Brink '33, manager, which will include approximately eight home contests and ten encounters away.

Three trips are being planned, of several days duration each. The first trip will be held just prior to the Christmas recess and will consist of three debates in Boston and vicinity. The second trip, to be held shortly after the opening of the second semester, will be through northern New York state. The last trip will be the annual one to New York city and vicinity.

A new policy is being followed this year in arranging the schedule. As far as possible the team will meet institutions of equal rating with Middlebury in size and standing. With this in view, engagements are being arranged with such colleges as Union, Colgate, Amherst, Williams, St. Lawrence, and Vassar, none of which have been met before by a Middlebury debating team.

Among the other colleges on the schedule are New York university, Univer-

Sophomores Try Out for '35 Kaleid

Photography for Year Book Scheduled to Begin With Individuals Next Monday

The editorial board of the 1934 Kaleidoscope has begun plans for the organization of this year's book at meetings held Monday, Wednesday and Friday of this week at Old Chapel.

They began the year's work of training candidates for the staff of the 1935 year book by holding the first meeting of all sophomore try-outs in Warner Hemicycle, Sunday, October 9 at four-thirty.

Thomas Noonan, editor-in-chief of the book, presided, briefly outlining the organization of the staff and the method of selecting its members. Sophomores were urged to try out for several departments in order to insure a more even distribution of work during the year. Following the plan drawn up several years ago by Pi Delta Epsilon, the candidates of the class of 1935 are to work for the heads of the department in which they are enlisted. They shall attend all board meetings although they have no voting power nor voice in discussions. In March, try-outs will be given examinations to test their knowledge concerning the management of the book. It is upon the results of these examinations and upon the quality of their work during the preceding months, that members of the new board consisting of editor-in-chief, business manager, associate editor and associate manager will be elected.

Due to a change in the schedule of the White studio which has been engaged to take the photographs for the 1934 Kaleidoscope, group pictures which were to have been taken October 9 have been postponed until October 23, when the same schedule will be in force. The time for individual sittings has also been changed, and they will begin next Monday. A fee of one dollar will be required of all juniors at the time pictures are taken.

Mountain Club Tickets Sold Out First Evening

The drive for mountain club members started off Thursday with the sale during the first evening of all tickets printed. New tickets were ordered and the drive opened again yesterday. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the executive committee. This year the price has been cut in half, the former cost for membership being two dollars.

There will be no general mountain club hike for three weeks. However, it is hoped by the committee that small groups of members will organize hikes on their own initiative. Arrangements may be made for equipment and transportation by notifying the president, James Banta '33.

He was business manager of the 1933 Kaleidoscope and is treasurer of Pi Delta Epsilon, vice president of Blue Key and a member of Waubanakee society and Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Miss Omwake has played class volley ball and basketball and was named on all-Midd hockey teams. She is president of the women's athletic association, having served as secretary and vice-president in earlier years. She is a member of Mortar Board and Pi Beta Phi.

Siipola is manager-elect of hockey this year. He was on the football squad as a sophomore and as a junior, and has played intramural sports every year. He is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi and has represented his fraternity on the class executive council since 1930.

Glee Club Will Enter Competition

To Join Other New England Colleges in Contest at Springfield in February

The Middlebury College glee club again plans to take part in the New England intercollegiate contest, to be held at Springfield, Massachusetts, in February. This has been a regular part of the club's concert season for several years, but it was not held last year because of financial reasons.

Contrary to precedent, the competition will take place in the afternoon, and a musical festival will be given in the evening, at which individual choice songs will be rendered, and several numbers will be sung jointly by all the contestants. Amherst, Clark, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Northeastern, Trinity, University of Vermont, Wesleyan, and Williams are expected to be among the institutions represented.

Arrangements for the contest were made at a meeting of the intercollegiate glee club association Friday, September 30, in Boston. Professor H. Goddard Owen and A. Gordon Ide '33, director and manager, respectively, of the Middlebury club attended this session.

Preparations are being made for the club to give several concerts in addition to participating in the contest. Any students who can cooperate with the glee club by suggesting the names of people or organizations that might be interested in arranging for concerts are asked to see Ide.

Rhodes Scholarship Applications Due

Four From New England States to Receive Two Years' Study at Oxford

All applications for Rhodes scholarships must be in the hands of the secretary of the state selection committee October 22. It will be necessary to have the applications in President Moody's office several days previous to that.

A Rhodes scholarship is tenable at the University of Oxford and may be held for three years. A recent change in the rules causes appointments to be made for two years in as much as most of the degrees may be obtained in that time. A third year, however, may be awarded. The stipend received by a Rhodes scholar is £400 a year.

Thirty-two scholarships are assigned annually to the United States. For the elections of 1932 the states have been divided into eight groups, Vermont being in the first. Applicants from Vermont schools will compete at Burlington. From these candidates the committee chooses two who will go to Boston to compete with two from each of the other New England states, and from this group four will be selected to receive the scholarships.

Selection for receiving the scholarship is based on the four following points, of which the first two are considered the more important.

(1) Literary and scholastic ability and attainments.

(2) Qualities of manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy, kindliness, unselfishness, and fellowship.

(3) Exhibition of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates.

(4) Physical vigour, as shown by interest in outdoor sports and in other ways.

Information regarding the scholarships including details and application blank may be obtained from the office

Painter Elected Chairman for Annual Literati Ball

A meeting of Pi Delta Epsilon was held last Thursday evening, October 6, at the D. U. house. The principal business was the election of the chairman of the Literati Ball, and the member of the student council from publications.

H. Alan Painter '33 was elected chairman of the Literati Ball and will choose his own committee. Ralph N. Huse '33 was elected as the representative from publications in the student council.

Mr. Painter was chairman of the 1933 Frosh Frolic committee and was assistant manager of freshman football. Last year he was assistant business manager of the Saxonian and was a member of the 1933 Kaleidoscope board. He was

College Publicity Association Has Conference Here

Mr. Foote, Miss Bradstreet, and Mrs. Haller Lead Discussions

THIRTY DELEGATES ATTEND CONVENTION

Entertainment Provided by Dr. A. W. Hewitt and Mr. W. H. Upson

The second annual meeting of the New England branch of the American college publicity association was held in Middlebury last Friday and Saturday. Thirty delegates, representing sixteen colleges, attended the conference.

After registration Friday afternoon, delegates met at the Middlebury inn for dinner, after which Dr. Arthur W. Hewitt of Plainfield gave an address, "Sins of Type and Tongue", describing the humorous possibilities of typographical and speech errors. Later in the evening moving pictures of several colleges were shown in the Inn lobby, and the comparative popularity of certain groups of scenes was discussed.

Saturday morning, after breakfast at the Chi Psi lodge, two conferences were held. Mrs. John Haller, winner of the national Eastman Kodak prize, led the first, on photography, and Mr. Wilder Foote, editor of the Brandon Union, and a former Associated Press correspondent, led the second, discussing associated press contacts. Following this Miss Elizabeth Bradstreet, assistant director of publicity at Wellesley college, conducted an open forum in the Egbert Starr library, at which time problems pertaining to all phases of college publications were discussed by the delegates.

After luncheon at the Inn, the delegates were left free to choose between an outing to Pleiad lake on the mountain campus, and the Massachusetts State football game on Porter field for the afternoon's entertainment.

Saturday evening dinner was served at the Delta Upsilon house, and Mr.

SOCIAL FRATERNITIES.

We ask the indulgence of the freshmen again this week, the men only, on a matter of advice—the choice of a fraternity.

Within the next few days you must decide exactly with which fraternal group you wish to become affiliated during four years of college. It is a tremendous choice and almost an irrevocable one. Few men break pledges, and after once being initiated into a Greek letter fraternity you can never break away from its traditions.

Since the choice of a fraternity is so important, be certain that you are not fooled when you make your decision. Don't think that by joining a fraternity you can be established socially. Middlebury is an essentially democratic institution. It is small enough for everyone to know everyone else. The worth of a man is not estimated by the bit of enamel and pearl which he displays on his vest.

No fraternity can establish you in activities. It is of course true that some houses are predominantly athletic, or scholastic, or journalistic. However, jobs of worth at Middlebury College are not handed out gratis. One must work for them. It makes no difference what fraternity you belong to, unless you have the qualities of leadership you cannot advance to the head of any worthwhile organization.

Furthermore, you cannot alter the grades you receive in your studies by joining any particular fraternity. Professors do not test your aptitude in a subject by the sort of pledge pin you wear. If you wish to obtain good grades it is necessary to work hard. No fraternity can aid you materially.

But aside from the benefit you expect to gain from the fraternity remember that it is essentially a social organization. It does not exist primarily as an eating club, a convenient place for holding dances, or as a handy unit in reckoning votes for class elections. It is the men who make up the fraternity that give it its complexion. When you go to a house for dinner think of the men that you see there. Are they a good cosmopolitan group interested in many things or are they all of one type? What is the attitude of these men toward other fraternities and toward the neutral group in particular? As soon as you are told that such and such a house has a skeleton in the closet you had better question your source of information; quite likely there is a larger skeleton close by. Also notice the attitude of the members toward each other. Don't forget that you are a guest who must be impressed with a fraternal spirit, and that your hosts are splendid actors. Try to observe these actors back stage when they are not in costume. How do they behave toward each other then?

But above everything else consider the men of the fraternity as men. Just because the captain of the team or the president of undergrad smiles at you and calls you by your first name don't think that he is of necessity thrilled to know you. He has his part to act and like all the other campus "big shots" he can act that part with finesse. Next day the chances are that he won't remember who you are. Think of these idols as men and of how you would like to play bridge or go to the movies with the man, not with the president of the honor society.

Take time in making up your mind, and when you do decide remember that you are judging a social fraternity—after all that is what really matters.

Galley Grist

—by John Israel Smith

Here it's three o'clock in the morning and we've neither column done nor nything read which could be considered of sufficient interest to become even slightly garrulous about. When is somebody going to assemble genius enough to write another book with as much joie de vivre (no, we're not affecting erudition) in it as "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" or Ogden Nash's "Hard Lines"? We've not been kept up until this ungodly hour for ages past by anything but Pliny's "Letters" or Dockeray's "Psychology", neither of which is our idea of a midnight or ante-dawn revel. But it's rather solemnly queer and impressive, seeing the campus at this hour with the stillness shattered only by the throb from the engine house, a vibration which sounds like the swing of the meter in Tennyson's "Into the valley of death rode the six hundred" . . . . . but referring to that has made us feel a bit ambiguous and confused, for we can never be sure whether it's the four, five or six hundred which get themselves so congenially slaughtered. We always were incorrigibly stupid in mathematics and we think they ought to be kept out of poetry . . . . . Anyhow, you know which poem we mean, because you were probably brought up on it along with Borden's milk and strained spinach and - - if you're a Vermonter - - - Republican gospel.

We've just heard - - - - to be factual, it was the day before yesterday - - - that the Viking Press is going to issue a volume of "Collected Boners" in time for the holiday book trade. The various editions of "Boners" have kept us from taking gas on a number of why-should-I-live-any-longer-occasions, and it will be very soothing to have a complete edition to carry in our pocket to dull parties or on "blind" dates which happen to turn out too "blinding".

Abbe Ernest Dimnet, whose "Art of Thinking" increased the bank deposits of the firm of Simon and Schuster and the cogitative tendency of the minority of the American public (the majority hasn't any, so we've been told a number of times), has written a new book entitled "What We Live By", and it's not an analysis of Sears and Roebuck or the A. and P. movement either. It's got something - - - rather profoundly - - - to do with philosophy: the true, the beautiful and the good. It's fashioned in the Socratic method of question and answer conflicts - - - like Dorothy Dix's column - - - and if you aren't convinced by the end, it's not the publisher's fault; on the other hand, if you don't understand it you'll be forgiven. In spite of the existence of such negations as Tammany Hall, ex-Mayor Walker, Samuel Insull and the freedom of the tabloid press, it proposes to inveigle you into believing in the reality of the absolute good. I presume we might call it a timely book, to be obviously subtle.

In an age of clipped sentences and fragmentary locutions, when language of every sort seems to have as its chief purpose the ideal of the utilitarian, it's a pungent pleasure to discover the exquisite and furbished prose of the Elizabethans and of the men who brought perfection to the sonorous in the writing of the Puritan period in England. We came upon several of Traherne's sermons one recent bleary day, and we were enchanted. "There were", indeed, "giants in the earth in those days". Sermon writing has long since lost its quality of excellence and has adopted the soporific. We wonder, who will carry on the tradition of men like Donne, Hooker, Traherne, Andrewes and Jeremy Taylor?

. . . . . The first number of Al Smith's new magazine "The Outlook" - - - - a combination of the old "Outlook" and "The World's Work" is appearing on the news stands, with a rather interesting article by Sylvia Thompson on how to keep going in times of depression.

. . . . . It's getting on towards morning, and we feel a precipitate desire to dash into bed which we intend to follow.

Shreds and Patches

—by James S. Tyler

Once again the CAMPUS comes through with a thrilling innovation. Last week it was a striking set of new front page headlines which everyone seems to agree is a boost in the right direction, and now it's the intimate, domestic tone of our advertisers. Cast your eye over the Granger ad, f'rinstance — isn't it touching? So this is Middlebury!

Before we're through with this colyum, we're going to introduce the possibilities — and they are many — of a personal notices department. We might lead off with — "Dear Jack: Come back, come back. All is forgiven. Daddy just locked up the meaning of resuscitate. Mary."

Great game Saturday — but wait, let's start with the rally. After that impassioned and very effective plea in chapel Friday, in which the speaker threw in everything but a crack about coming solely to bury Caesar, the college on the hill responded nobly. Nice thing about rallies, they offer such a swell opportunity to exchange faculty witticisms.

Then came the game and rooters' voices dwindled to a rasping wheeze before the first quarter was over. Trying to react audibly to that Blue and White parade in the last period, most of us sounded like the Mills brothers succumbing to asthma. From the grandstand point of view, the game was a real inspiration for one wisecrack after another, from a row of freshmen behind us — freshmen, mind you. They nominated Ed Lockwood for anchorman on the all-Midd rope-pulling team. They thought it was stupendous the way a cheer leader lifted a megaphone to his ear and got his information right out of the heavens for scores of other games. And they appreciated the advantages of the coxswain method of coaching a team from atop the grandstand. Oh, the frosh are surprisingly keen this year.

With all the rain that has fallen in the last few days, the Otter creek otter rise plenty, don't you think?

With typical daring and bravado, our enterprising reporter, notebook in hand, sneaked about last week and carefully measured the length of noses under faculty spectacles. He found the mean average to be eight point six one seven centimeters (approximately). And we agree that mean is the right word. On the other hand, Bruce Barton points out that practically all geniuses and successful people in all fields are endowed with over-size probosces.

What with sneezes, coughs, and rooter's wheezes conversation at the gym dance was some adventure. She: "Well, now what shall we (a-achoo!) talk about?" He: "Aw let's not (sniff, sniff!) talk at all." Together: "I was sure I had a handkerchief. Oh, dear!"

After the publicity conference of last week-end drew to a close, it was moved, seconded and passed by a representative group of upperclassmen that we send a vote of thanks to Wellesley, to Radcliffe and the rest, for having done their little bit to brighten our shut-in hours while they were here. You must call again, ladies of the press.

Referring again to the game with Mass. State, we have a peach of a story to tell you sometime about the scrub manager who sprinted down the field with a bucket full of water, and when he arrived there was actually some water left! Along about the third quarter it was suggested that the game be rechristened fumball.

What a meeting the student life committee must have had when they passed that resolution about the minimum number of lamps and required candle power to be used at college informal dances. The idea — measuring human relations in watts and ohms!

Live Your Religion Says Bishop Booth

One Should Be Thankful for Christian Traditions and Thorough in His Thinking

Constant recollection of the things of the spirit was stressed by Rev. Samuel B. Booth of Burlington, Episcopal bishop of the Vermont diocese, who was guest speaker at vespers last Sunday. "Remember thy Creator," from Ecclesiastes I, was the text.

Most students as a result of home training, it was pointed out, are interested in religion and are led to test out its principles. In thus living one's religion, it is necessary to be in daily remembrance of spiritual things. To stress this point, numerous bible passages were quoted: "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy"; regarding the communion, "This do ye in remembrance of me"; St. Paul's advice to despairing Timothy, "Just remember Jesus Christ".

"Remember thy Creator in the youth of thy days," added Bishop Booth, "in order to build up an association of religion to our daily needs at a definite time and in a definite way." To illustrate this thought, he gave examples of two men, one of whom worried constantly and thus lost his health, while the other recovered from a nervous collapse through trust in spiritual guidance. "Real recollectiveness," he said, "comes from long self-discipline."

Bishop Booth explained the threefold character of religion as institutional; moral and ethical; and individual and rational. It is institutional in its tradition and formality; moral and ethical in principle; individual and rational in its practical application to each life. The institutional character of religion renders it dear by its traditions and "associations with times, places, and people." "The world needs ethics based upon Christian principles; the world needs men and women who dare to be thoughtful."

Three thoughts Bishop Booth left for consideration: thankfulness for the traditions and ideals of Christianity and constant recollection of them; thoughtfulness, the courage to clarify one's religious views by intelligent thinking; and thoroughness; "Don't be half-way. Live your religion and test it out."

120 Take First Hike With Mountain Club

The mountain club inaugurated its 1932 season last Sunday when one hundred and twenty members and nonmembers took an all day trip to Lake Pleiad. The hike was under the supervision of James Banta '33, president and Mary Omwake '33, director of itinerary.

The group left Battell cottage in three trucks at 10:15 a. m. and rode to the foot of the mountain. One group went up to Silent Cliff and down to Bailey's Falls, eating lunch at Lake Pleiad lodge. The other group climbed to Pleiad lookout and ate their lunch at the lake.

The meal consisted of hamburg steak, rolls, apples, doughnuts, and coffee. After lunch they went down to the foot of the trail where they were met by the trucks and driven back to Battell cottage, arriving at 4 o'clock.

Episcopal Students Meet Doctor Booth at Rectory

On Sunday evening, October 9, Bishop Booth met with a number of Episcopalian students at the home of Dr. Knowles. The Bishop spoke informally to the group about praying and getting the most out of one's religion.

He said in part that our prayers should consist of three divisions: adoration, thanksgiving for the benefits we receive; co-operation, praying for others; and dependence, asking for ourselves.

At the instigation of those present plans were made for a retreat to be held at Rock Point October 22 and 23.

The evening closed with a moment of silent meditation and prayers by Bishop Booth.

Thirty-Two Now in College Orchestra

Professor Larsen Reports Fine Instrumentation is Available for the Year

The college orchestra, composed of thirty-two musicians, has begun regular practice under the direction of Prof. Alfred Larsen in preparation for the winter season.

According to Professor Larsen, in spite of the difficulty in securing the proper instrumentation in a small college, the Middlebury orchestra has been unusually fortunate in the past few years in this respect. With the present state of development which has been attained, the orchestra is in reality a class in practical playing of the classics, the operatics, and the lighter forms of orchestral music.

The principle compositions to be studied this year are: 'Overture Prometheus" by Beethoven, movements from "New World Symphony" by Dvorak, "Coronation March" by Svendsen, "Vorespiel" from "Rienzi" by Wagner, "Scenes Alsaciennes" by Massent, "Hungarian Dances (No. 2 and 7)" by Brahms, and ballet music from "Rosamonde" by Schubert.

The personnel of the orchestra is:

First violin: Allyn White '33, concert master; Harry Wells '33, Edward Yerovitz '33, Alice Collins '33, Mary Ballard '35, and Rosamond Bishop '36.

Second violin: Reginald House '33, Gladys Mountford '33, Anna Tuthill '34, Frances Chaffee '35, Winifred Clark '35, and Jeanette Stone '35.

Violincello: Gordon Hoyt '36, Sarah Elliot '35.

Bass: Philip Carpenter '33, Leon Sears '34.

Flute: Francis Sprague '34.

Oboe: Arnolda Gifford '34.

Clarinet: Clifford McLure '34, Dorothy Smith '34, and Roxana Lewis '36.

Bassoon: Lois Studley '35.

Trumpets: Donald MacQuivey '34, Mary Dansereau '36.

Trombone: Russell White '34, Sidney White '36.

Piano: Alice Parsons '34, Frances Lamson '35.

Organ: Vincent Sargent '34.

Saxophone: Ruth McNulty '36.

Drums and Percussions: Warren Goodrich '33, Dorothy Chamberlain '36.

Regular practice hours, under the direction of Professor Larsen, have been scheduled and the organization plans a winter concert program similar to that presented last winter. This event, held in Mead memorial chapel, will take place next spring.

Picnic Supper is Held by Women's College Monday

One hundred and fifty of the women's college took part in a hare and hound chase ending with a picnic supper at the caves in the college park Monday, October 10. This was another feature planned and executed by the social league for the advantage of the women's college.

The hares left trails "over hill, over dale" and at 4:30 p. m. the hounds, arranged in four groups according to classes, caught the scent and started out. Freshmen dogs, following a rabbit which kept more to the beaten paths arrived at the destination first while the seniors and juniors sighted the small group of hares at the caves simultaneously a few minutes later. Sophomore hounds reached the place of rest and repast soon.

Telling stories, toasting marshmallows and singing college songs around the campfires were in order after the ample repast of weiners, rolls, bacon, beans, pickles, coffee and cake.

Zavart Markarian Wins Women's Tennis Cup for Permanent Possession

Zavart Markarian '33, by winning the women's singles tennis championship for three years, was awarded permanent possession of the trophy, September 30.

Miss Markarian has been actively interested in athletics during her college course, winning places on the all-Midd basketball and volley ball teams during her sophomore year. In her freshman year she played on the championship hockey team.

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

Middlebury Primed For Williams Game

Last Encounter With Purple Was in 1929 When Midd Bowed to a Score of 13-0

This Saturday Middlebury will journey down to Williamstown where it will encounter Williams college grid warriors for the first time since 1929. That year the game was played at Porter field and was won by the Purple 13-0.

So far this season the Williams eleven has been able to win but one game in three contests. It defeated Rochester in its opening encounter 6-0, while on the following Saturday, it was upset by R. P. I. 7-6. This was the first defeat the Purple suffered on its home field since 1927 and was the first time it had been defeated by any team except Columbia in five years. Last Saturday it was again defeated, this time by Bowdoin 7-0.

In its three games to date Middlebury has failed to garner a victory. Columbia trounced the Blue and White in the opening game 51-0 and Tufts was the next to take the measure of the Panther, winning a hard fought game 9-0. Last week in its first home game Middlebury lost to Mass. State 13-6. Although there has been no common opponent of the two teams thus far, the fact that Bowdoin downed Mass. State 20-6 and only edged out the Purple 7-0 while Middlebury was losing to the Bay State team 13-6 appears to give Williams a slight edge.

The Royal Purple is not as strong as it was the past four years and has keenly felt the loss of Fowle, Tuttle, Senn, and Good in the backfield, as well as the loss by graduation of Foehl, Stevans and Wood in the line. Captain Thayer at center, Davis at guard and Reid and Woodrow at tackle and end are the only veterans in the line while the only capable back is Markoski, quarterback. Correale, Rogers, and Berry of last year's team did not report for fall practice and as yet have failed to see action. This has caused Coach Caldwell to convert Lamberton, a tackle, into a fullback. If the above three men return in time for the game Saturday it will strengthen the squad considerably.

Middlebury will probably start the same line-up that opposed Mass. State with the exception of Hoyle who may not play because of the leg injury sustained in the last game. This week's game should be a hard fought contest and close throughout.

Cross Country Team Will Meet Williams

Coach Brown's Men to Open Season Next Saturday on the Massachusetts Course

The cross country men continue to work out daily in preparation for the Williams meet next Saturday, and recent time trials indicate that the squad is rapidly rounding into form.

While Captain R. Short, and Sears appear to be the most dependable, the team as a whole is very well balanced and any one of the Blue runners is apt to lead the pack home. This means much in a cross country meet where the team score is what counts. In the work-outs to date there has been very little difference in the times of the first five men.

While it was expected that several of last year's frosh would be mainstays on the varsity squad this fall, injuries and lack of practice are apt to keep all newcomers on the side-lines for the opening match at least.

Coach Brown has been running his men over the old course which was shortened to make it comparable in length to the hills at Williamstown. As a result the men will be able to pace themselves with better judgment, and will not hold off too long before opening up with their final drive.

While the Bay Staters are reputed to be stronger than last year, prospects for a Middlebury victory are quite bright. The following men will probably face the starter next Saturday for the Blue and White: R. Short, Sears, Ingersoll, Kelly, D. Short, White, Taylor, and Jillson.

Massachusetts State Defeats Middlebury 13-6; Aerial Attack Proves Too Strong For Panthers

Flashing an aerial attack that bewildered Middlebury, Mass. State fought their way to a 13-6 victory over the Panthers at Porter field last Saturday in the first home game of the season.

Middlebury scored early in the initial period as the result of a lateral pass from Hoyle to Hartrey that was good for twenty-three yards and a touchdown. The Blue and White was completely outplaying the visitors at this stage of the game, but after chalking up the first score the Panthers could not seem to click at critical moments, and threw away several beautiful opportunities to add to their total. Meanwhile the Bay Staters crossed the goal line in the second stanza, and again in the final quarter. Both scores came as the result of their passing attack.

The game opened with Middlebury kicking off to Mass. State. The invaders could not pierce the Blue defense, and although aided by a penalty on Midd for offside they could not advance. They were forced to kick, and Middlebury took the ball on State's forty-six yard line. Several smashes at the line were followed by a pass from Yeomans to Hoyle that netted ten yards. The latter then advanced eight yards on a sweep around left end. Another line buck by Hartrey gained a yard, and then he received a lateral from Hoyle which left him free out on the left side of the line. He easily out-distanced two State men in the race for the goal. Corliss' attempt to convert the extra point was blocked by Bush, the ace of the Red and White backfield.

The visitors immediately took the offense, but could make no impression during the remainder of the period. The second quarter had hardly opened when Hoyle hurt his ankle and was forced to retire.

With the period three-quarters through, the winners got a break when Yeomans took a bad pass from center and was rushed in getting his kick off. As a result State had the ball in Midd territory. Bush was smeared for a six yard loss by Corliss, and when a pass was knocked down things began to look brighter. However, a successful pass, Bush to Mountain carried the ball to the nineteen yard stripe. With Sheff on the receiving end, Bush looped another aerial which gave the boys from Amherst a first down on the three yard mark. On the third attempt Mass. State tallied with Sheff going off left tackle. He also made good the try for the extra point, putting his team in the lead 7-6.

The final touchdown was recorded in the last period when Midd had several substitutes in the backfield. Bush was allowed to get beyond the secondary and he took a forward pass from White and crossed the final chalk mark without a hand being laid on him. They failed to convert the extra point.

In their first home game, the Panthers showed a weakness against forward passes, but on the whole the de-

Frosh Gridmen Drop Opener to Clarkson

Tech Yearlings Tally Three Scores in Fourth Quarter Making Final Count 27-0

The Middlebury freshmen lost their first football game of the season to Clarkson Tech frosh last Saturday by a score of 27-0. The game was played at Potsdam and proved to be a stiff contest up until the last few minutes of play.

In the opening quarter the engineers aided by penalties and short plunges scored the first touchdown of the game and place-kicked the goal to establish a lead of 7-0. Middlebury fought back strongly and prevented the Clarkson aggregation from threatening their goal throughout the rest of the half. The Blue and White however, were unable to come close to a score and the half ended with the Techmen leading by a touchdown.

During the third and majority of the last quarter both teams fought hard but were unable to pierce the defense of their opponents. With two minutes to go in the final period Middlebury sent in an entire new team. A pass thrown from the Midd thirty yard line to Gaffney on the ten yard stripe was successful and he ran over for Clarkson's second score. The try for the extra point was wide of the goal posts. Clarkson kicked off and the ball was taken to the thirty-five yard marker. A pass was attempted by the Panthers on second down but was intercepted by the Tech left tackle who ran the distance to the goal line. The extra point was made by the aerial route and the score was 20-0. Again Middlebury received the kick off and attempted to pass but this was also intercepted by the engineers on the Cub thirty yard line.

On the next play Clarkson threw a pass which was completed on the goal line and the whistle ended the game. However, the engineers had the opportunity to try for goal and a place kick was sent sailing between the uprights to make the final score 27-0. The one-sided tally fails to indicate the strength of Blue defense throughout the game.

Freshman Squad to Oppose Montpelier

Seminary Eleven Has Been Defeated by Spaulding But Won Over Norwich

With the varsity eleven at Williamstown, the Panther Cubs will entertain Montpelier seminary here Saturday, and also try to atone for the loss suffered at the hands of Clarkson Tech.

The visitors have a formidable array, and in their ranks are many former high school stars. In their first game they bowed to the strong Spaulding high squad, one of the fastest school teams of the year, in a closely waged contest. The Norwich seconds furnished the opposition for their second start, but the seminary outfit trampled all over the cadets who were woefully weak.

The frosh will have to watch the passing combination of Conti to Banahan, as this duo was responsible for most of the scoring done in the two games to date.

The score of the Clarkson game does not give a true idea as to the strength of the frosh, as three of the touchdowns were scored in the last few minutes of play after Coach Nelson had sent in a flock of substitutes. Having played together in one game, and with an extra week's practice to iron out the errors that cropped out in the initial contest, the first year men will probably offer the seminary group plenty of trouble.

Intensive Rushing to Commence Monday

Fraternity rushing is now in full progress and next week will mark the end of intensive rushing.

During the past week visiting periods have been in effect to enable the first year men and the upper classmen to become acquainted. Visiting periods on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays have been between the hours of 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays, and Sundays. The last of these periods will end Friday at 6 p. m. and over the week-end there will be no calling.

Next week, October 17 to October 21, will be devoted to rushing proper under rules established by the interfraternity council. The week will be broken into three periods, as it has been done in past years. The first occupies Monday and Tuesday, the second Wednesday and Thursday, with Friday being the last day of rushing. Formal bids will be issued Saturday morning, October 22, and may be accepted after chapel.

During the first two periods each first year man shall accept one invitation from every fraternity offering him one or refuse all unless specifically excused by the house involved. For the third period he is free to accept whatever invitations he may choose. Breaking of this rule shall be the same as a broken pledge, for which the penalty is ineligibility to be pledged by any house until the following fall.

MIDDLEBURY LOSES TO MASS. STATE 13-6

fense was all that could be asked for at this time of the season. Bush skirted the ends for long runs on several occasions, but he was also tossed for losses on numerous attempts to break through the line. On the offense a few of the plays were carried out with neatness and precision, but too often the attack stalled when it was very necessary that it should be in high gear. Had they been able to sustain their drive the Blue and White would undoubtedly have finished in front.

Probably the greatest surprise to the fans was the flashy work of Boehm who came up from last year's frosh eleven. He was very fast, followed his interference well, and fought every mintue he was in the game. With more experience he promises to be very valuable to the Panthers.
